Summary

The provided results primarily concern the Australian Corporations Act 2001, including its transitional provisions (Sections 1414, 1415, 1431) and related consequential legislation from 2001. Several Federal Court and Federal Court of Appeal cases, dating from 2007 to 2024, are also listed. These cases indicate ongoing litigation relevant to corporate law under this Act, involving entities such as the Commissioner of Taxation and the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. This suggests the Act is a central piece of legislation governing corporate entities in Australia, with specific provisions for its implementation and amendment.
